There be at this day three or foure sorts of them; first those that, holding immediately of the Crowne (as the Vicomte de Turenne, and but a few others) are to be ranked among great, or high Lords, and before any Barons: then those that, holding of the King as of Counties reunited to the Crowne; or holding of Counties lately created, or not yet reunited (and being thereby in the qualitie of Arrierevassaux de la Couronne) are no better then vane Lords, and precede onely those Barons that either but equal, or be in-*

Briefe Directions for such as desire to learne the French Tongue :

And first, of the Vowels, and Diphthongs.

A Is to be sounded fully, as in the English all; not as we sound it in stale ale.

E E, when it is thus accented é, whether in the middle or in the end of a word, is called é Masculin, and sounded out, as in the Latine word docère. Otherwise it is called e Feminine, and is to be sounded imperfectly as the second syllable of Facere, Or as in this English speech, Is he come? If two or three, e, be in the end of a word, the first are Masculines, the last is Feminine, as destinée, créée.

I I, is to be sounded like ee in English in feeble or meeke. So must you sound amitié, &c.

O O, before N or M hath the sound of oo in our English word Moone. So must you pronounce the French word mon, comme on dit, commencement, &c.

V V, is sounded as if you would whistle it out, as in the word, a Lute.

I and V are consonants when they are put before other vowels, as with the Latines, as jalouſie, vive le Roy. V also standing before R is sometimes a consonant, as vray, not u-ray.

Diphthongs.
Ai The Diphthong ai is to be sounded as it is written, in the end of the Aovist of the first Coniugation, as j'aimay. Secondly, if a vowel follow it, as j'aye, ayons, ayant. Thirdly, if ll follow it, as touaille. Otherwise it is alwayes sounded like é Masculine, as j'ay, j'aimeray, like j'é, j'émeré.

Ao The Diphthong ao, in the word faoul, is to be pronounced So, by omitting the prepositiue vowel. But in these words paon, tahon, faon, the Subiunctiue vowel is omitted, and they are sounded pan, tan, fan.

Au The Diphthong au is to be sounded like o, as we pronounce it in saying Pauls croſſe; so sound aux paux like os pos.

Apostrophus. Apostrophus taketh away a vowel out of a word of one syllable, when it standeth before another word beginning with a vowel; as, L'eglise for la eglise; L'obelon for le obelon; So we say S'il for si il.

Synalepha Synalepha taketh away the sound, but not the bodie, of e feminine before a word beginning with another vowel, as mon pere & ma mere ont disné, read mon per & ma mer ont disné. If a Verbe end in a or o, and il or on follow it, we put in the sound of the letter t; as for parle il, parlet il, for dira on, dirat on.

Diacresis is when two points ouer a vowel diuide it from another vowel, as boué, queué, read bou-e, queu-e, not bo-ue, que-uc.

Of Consonants.

The generall rule of Consonants is, That if a word end in a consonant, and the word following begin with another, the finall consonant of the word going before is not to be sounded, as tout ce qui luit n'est pas or, read it thus, tou ce qui luy ne pas or.

Except

1. The word end a liquide l, m, n, r, as mon pere, not mo pere. Howbeit l is not to be sounded in the word il, as il faut, read it i faut.
2. The word end in c, as avec moy, not ave moy.
3. The word end in f, as le bœuf d'Angleterre.
4. The word end in g, as le ioug de Christ est legier.
5. The word end in q, as vn coq d'Inde.
6. There follow any point, ; ; ; !.

C C, with a taile thus ç is to be sounded like s, as garçon, pieça, like garçon, pieſſa. Secondly ch is pronounced like sh, as cheval like sheval. Except in proper names, as Chanaan, and these ſiure appellatiues, Cholere, Chorde, Eschole, Cichorée. Thirdly c before t is not to be sounded, as faitç, dicton, like fet, ditton.

G G, loyned with n is to be sounded through the nose, as you sound n in the English word onion: So pronounce the French oignon, and Espagnol like Spaniard in English. These syllables gua, gue, gui, are to be sounded like ga, ge, gi, as in guame, guerre, guise: Except the proper names Guise, Guillaume, and the Verbe Esguiser.

L L, in the middle of a word is not to be sounded, as aultre, oultre, like autre, ourtre. In the end of these words, fol, mol, col, sol, is to be sounded like ll in the English word Scullion, or Collier. So must you sound Sillon, touaille, as though i were written after ll, Sellion, touaillie.

M M, in the end of words is to be sounded like n, as nom, faim, dam, temps, like non, fein, dan, tans.

N N, is not to be sounded in the third person plurall that endeth in ent, as ilz aiment, ilz parlent, read iz aimet, &c.

Briefe Directions to learne the French Tongue.

Q In qua, que, qui, is to be sounded like ka, ke, ki; as quatre, querir, quiter; like katre, kerir, kiter.

R S R and S, in the beginning of words, or next unto some other Consonant, are to be sounded out; more strongly when they be double, as in guerre, and poison; and as gently, single, and betwene two vowels; as in guere, and poison; the tongue in the former giuing onely a touch to the palate, and sounding the later as if it were a Z.

S, Preceding a Consonant within a word, is either fully to be suppressed (as in the most naturall French words) or fully to be sounded: As first in all proper names, as Auguste, &c; Except in Basle, the citie Basil; Crespin, Cripinus; Christ, (although now the most pronounce the s in it) Escosse, Hierosime; (whereunto Beza, and Bellot, adde Colme, though it seeme by the same Analogie as fit to pronounce s in that from the word κίωμα, as Erasme from Εξίωμα.)

Secondly, in all words ending in isme; as Iudaisme; except Abisme, and the Deriuatives thereof. Thirdly, in names of Sects; as Atheiste, Anabaptiste, &c.

Fourthly, in all words that signifie the fashion of people; as, A la Morelique, Greguelque, Barba-ricque, &c.

And particularly in the words following (whereunto sundrie others may be added, which comming from the Latine, retaine the Latine pronunciation.)

A	D	H	P
A ccofter, when it signifieth to approach; but when it signifieth to prop up, the s is not to be sounded.	Damafquiner.	Herborifte.	Pensionifte.

T T in this word et is neuer pronounced, as vous et moy, like vous e moy.
X X in the end of a word is to be sounded like s, as paix, prix, like pais, pris: in the middest, like z, as dixieme, dizieme. But in these words, Soixante, Lexiue, Bruxelles, Complexion, it is to be sounded like ff, as Lestiuue, Compleffion, &c. In other words that come from the Latine, it retaineth its sound; as Zeuxe, excuse. Accent the last syllable, unless it be e feminine, as amour, apres, demain. Note this moreover, that the taking away of a letter causeth the vowel that goeth before it to be pronounced long, and consequently serueth to distinguish betweene wordes of like sound, as teste an bead, and tete a breast, maitin, a maitiue, and matin the morning, &c.

Concerning the forming of the Tenses. The Imperfect of the Indicative is formed from the first person plural of the Present. changing ons in oy, as chantons, je chantoy. The first and second persons plural in the Present of the Optative, and in the Imperfect of all Moods, interpose i, in all Coniugations, as, Aimions, aimassions, amerions.

The second of the Imperative, is from the first of the Indicative of all Coniugations, as Di tu, recoy tu, &c. The third from the third plural of the same tense, by taking away nt, as ilz donnent, qu'il donne, &c. Some be irregular, as qu'il face, qu'il sache, from font, and sçavent.

The Present of the Optative, from the third of the Imperative euermore. The Imperfect from the second singular of the Aorist, tu leus, je leusse.

The Imperfect of the Subiunctive from the Future of the Indicative, by changing ay in oy, as j'aymeray, j'aymeroy, &c.

The Participle Present from the first plural of the present of the Indicative, changing ons, in ant, as bastifions, bastissant.

A Verbe Passiue.

A Verbe Passiue is made by putting the Participle of any Verbe to the persons of the Verbe je suis, as je suis, tu es, il est aimé, nous sommes, vous estes, ils sont aimez. Imperfect. j'estoye aimé, nous estions aimez, &c.

Note also, that the third persons in both numbers are passively to be readed, when se is set before them, as il se fait, it is done, ilz se font, they are made.

A Verbe Impersonall } Active is made by putting il before the third person, as il conuient, il conuenoit, il fault, il falloit, il fallust, il ha fallu, il faudra, &c. Such are these il neige, it snoweth, il gresle, it hailleth, il Gele, it freezeth, il rele, it thaweth, il auerspit, it waxeth night, il plut, it raineth.
 } Passive is made by putting on, or lon, before the third persons singular of Verbes Actiues, as on dit, dicitur, it is said, or men say, on aime, amatur, men loue, on aimoit, on aimast, &c.

Inter-

Interjections.

Of lamenting, Las, helas, alas. Of silenting, It as with the Latines. The rest I purposely omit.

Syntaxis of Nounes.

Adjectives, especially those that signifie colour, are put after their Substantives, as vin blanc, vin clair, pain bis. These are set before the Substantives, bon, beau, belle; nouveau, nouvelle; mauvais, petit; as petit homme, mauvaise femme.

The Adjective agreeth with his Substantive in Gender; as mon pere, ma mere. Yet if the Substantive begin with a vowel, they put an Adjective Masculine before it, as mon epee, mon hostesse: Except m'amic, or if the word begin with h, when it is sounded with aspiration, as ma hauteur.

When two Substantives come together, the later is put in the Genitive case, as L'argent du Prince est sujet à la pince. Sometimes one of the Substantives is taken away by Ellipsis, as à la Saint Jean, la Toussaints, where the word Feste is understood.

Adjectives of desiring, or plenty, or carefulnesse, and their contraries gouverne a Genitive case, as riche d'argent, nonchalant de son prouffit.

Comparatives gouverne a Genitive case, as la face n'est plus grande qu' d'emy pied. Sometimes que serveth to the Comparative, as plus blanc que neige.

Of Verbes.

The Infinitive with an Article becometh a Noun Substantive, as le boire estaint la soif, for le boisson.

When two Verbes come together, the later is the Infinitive Mood, as je veulx aimer. Sometime the principall Verbe is understood, as les mastins de courir, & nous d'aller apres. i. commencerent, & nous commençames.

The Nominative case goeth before the Verbe. Except the question be asked, as iray je? Shall I goe? as-tu? hast thou?

The Accusative followeth the Verbe, j'aime mon maistre: except me, te, se, le, luy, leur, nous, vous; as tu te prises, il se tourmente, je luy diray, je leur escriray: Except it be the Imperative Mood, as battezle. Moy, toy, soy, are also put after the Imperative Mood, as well for the Dative as the Accusative, as di-moy leve-toy.

Me, te, se, are put before the particle en, especially before Verbes Neuters, signifying moving to a place, as je m'en vay, va t'en, sui t'en, ilz s'en font aller. Sometimes a Verbe hath two Pronounes before it, as vous vous cortoucez fort, one the Nominative, the other the Accusative case; or else the Verbe is plac'd betweene them, as Comme vous portez vous? Sometimes there are three, as vous vous en irez vous?

Some Verbes being construed with an Infinitive Mood, cause it to be rendred passively, as je vous feray battre, I will make you beaten; faites faire chemin, cause roome to be made; je le vei mettre en prison, I saw him put in prison.

The Verb aller is elegantly construed with a Participle, as il s'en alloit disant. i. il disoit; il s'en va mourant. i. il meurt.

A Participle added to je suis, to make a Preterperfect tense, may varie both Gender and Number, as je suis venu, elle est venue; nous sommes venus. But being added to j'ay, it changeth not its termination, as j'ay diné, elle ha diné, nous avous diné. Tea if a Substantive goe before the Nominative case and the Verbe, the Participle following is rendred passively, and agreeth in Gender and Number with that Substantive, as les graces que Dieu nous ha données; les corps que la mer ha englouris.

Of Adverbes.

NE the negative is alwayes accompanied with point, or pas; as il n'y est point, or pas, hee is not there at all. And without either of these words it is equivalent, to an affirmative, il est plus sçavant que ne font ses compaignons, he is more learned then are his fellows.

Dont is a Particle of Relation, and signifieth as much as de que, de quoy, du quel, dequels; as j'ay le livre dont vous parlez, I have the booke of which you speake.

Of Prepositions.

1 Standing betweene two Substantives, maketh the later an Adjective, as homme à cheval, an horseman, homme à pied, a footman, escuelle à oreillons, a Porrenger, or a dish with eares.

2 Standing before a Denominative, it signifieth as much as after the fashion, as à la Francoise, after the French fashion; à la Todelque, after the Dutch fashion. So en is used as vivre en beste, to live after the manner of a beast; traité en Prince, intertain'd like a Prince.

3 Is put after an Adjective signifying aptnesse, or nimblenesse, as vîte à l'ecteu, nimble at the ball.

1 Standing before a Substantive, it signifieth either matter, as bague d'or, a gold ring; or the instrument, as battre de verges, to beat with rods; jouer de l'espinnette, to play on the Virginals.

2 It is put after Adjectives signifying dexteritie, as habile de la plume, skilfull at his pen; habile du pied, active, or swift of foot.

3 Standing before the Infinitive mood, it is Englished to, as je vous prie de faire cela, I beseech you to doe that.

4 Du standing before a Substantive signifieth part of any thing, and is Englished some, as du pain, some bread; des poissons, some fishes.

De-

Briefe Directions to learne the French Tongue.

Devant is construed with que before an Infinitive, as Devant qu'aller, before mee goe. Apres with the Preterperfect tense of the Infinitive mood, as apres avoir receu vos lettres, after the receiving of your letters.

Aupres, Arriere, à lentour, gouverne a Genitive case, as aupres du feu, neere the fire, arriere de nous, behind us, à l'entour de soy, round about himselfe.
