

110 The Nature of the Barley-Corn, and shake it well about a quarter of an Hour, and let it stand a Day and Night, and it will bring off the red Colour, and alter the Taste of the Cask very much.
But of three several other excellent Methods for curing musty, stinking, new and other tainted Casks, I have writ of in my Account of Casks in my Second Book.

Of Bunging Casks and Carrying of Malt Liquors to some distance.

I AM sure this is of no small Confequence, however it may be esteemed as a light matter by some; for if this is not duly perform'd, all our Charge, Labour and Care will be lost; and therefore here I shall dissent from my London Fashion, where I bung'd up my Ale with Pots of Clay only, or with Clay mix'd with Bay Salt, which is the better of the two, because this Salt will keep the Clay moist longer than in its Original State; and the Butt Beers and fine Ales were Bung'd with Cork drove in with a piece of Hop-Sack or Rag, which I think are all infipid,
